CURRICULUM

M.A. (English) course with its focus on various Literature and Language components will provide a unique opportunity to students to obtain communication skills that will enable them to pursue their career in diverse fields like teaching, research, media, technical writing, journalism, creative writing and so on. It gives students an exposure to the artistic and innovative use of language employed by various literary figures belonging to different literary canons and countries. Along with linguistic competence, the course introduces unique literary texts that help to instill values and develop human concern in students.

This is a Two year full time course with four semesters and is intended preferably for graduates in English. The basic aims/objectives of this course are to:

- Acquaint students with different theoretical and practical aspects of language and literary theory.
- Cultivate their literary sensibility and develop critical thinking for the proper appreciation of texts.
- Sensitize them to reflect on universal human concerns.
- To enhance their understanding of cultural studies.
- To provide exposure to different approaches, methods and techniques of teaching English Language and Literature.
